Performance

Concept

The title is a short form of Funky Polyphony, referring to the musical fabric which is formed from polyphonic thematic and rhythmic ostinati. Often syncopated in nature, these gather and combine in increasingly complex ways. The underlying structure comprises a series of discrete segments ('blocks') of music separated by pauses. These blocks start very small. However, as the piece progresses they increase in size, complexity and intensity.

The influences which informed my use of this kind of structure are varied but all have one feature in common: a series of distinct and separate elements put together in a sequence. They include:

- Several groundbreaking moments in Beethoven's output. For example: Op 106 (the preamble to the last movement fugue, where themes are presented and cut off in full flow and discarded); the recitative passage at the start of the final movement of the 9th symphony; and the start of the Grosse Fuge op 133 where the following music is summarised unapologetically in a string of seemingly unrelated quotations.
- The thematic catalogues commonly found on the pages of published scores.
- My own musical sketchbooks, where totally unrelated ideas follow each other. However, on listening to them in sequence, I realised they were affecting each other in a fascinating yet completely unintended way.
- The later art of Henri Matisse.

My task was then to combine the blocks and their musical content into an integrated and satisfying whole: a piece which presents a string of separate musical chunks, like ornaments on a necklace, but whose contents are shared and developed, and follow on from each other in a completely logical way.

Interpretation

Blocks are denoted by boxed rehearsal numbers, of which there are 18. The challenge for the conductor is to allow them to sound at once separate but also to connect with each other - the over-arching purpose to create a powerful and irresistible forward momentum. In this way, by the time we get to block 16, a piece which starts out with playful, even skittish juxtapositions should gallop headlong to a sudden and much darker climax. Thus it has been left to the conductor to choose whatever length of pause to make between each block: I have not attempted to prescribe whether such and such a pause should be long, short, or hardly at all. It is entirely discretionary.

Accented cross rhythms abound and precision is paramount. However, it's not intended that everything should be heard with clarity - ostinati emerge and disappear; we should not always hear them start or know when they've stopped. Some blocks contain material which is apparently almost completely, and randomly, pointillist. Although this is completely intentional there is rigorous structure here too. See block 15 for example, which starts in this pointillist manner but, from which, an ostinato figure gradually appears (starting at bar 326, oboe 2). This figure should emerge imperceptibly from the background, from the mass staccato 'cloud'.

Notation

I have used conventional notation throughout with no custom made signs or extended techniques. The notation 'n' standing for niente is adopted, and pedal style brackets to instruct the harpist to allow laissez vibrer.

Duration: 11'09" - this is approximate by the very nature of the piece

This musical score is for a piece titled "Funky Poly". It is a 24-measure score, with the first 15 measures on this page and the remaining 9 measures on the following page. The score is written for a large ensemble, including woodwinds, strings, and percussion.

Woodwind Section:
Flutes (Fl. 1-4), Oboes (Ob. 1-2), Clarinets in Bb (Cl. in Bb 1-2), Clarinet in A (Cl. in A), Bass Clarinet (B. Cl.), Bassoons (Bsn 1-3), and Contrabassoon (Cbsn).
The woodwinds play a complex, rhythmic pattern in the first 15 measures, often marked with accents and dynamic markings like ff. In the second system, they play a more melodic and rhythmic line, with dynamic markings ranging from p to f.

String Section:
First Horns (F. Hn in F 1-4), Trumpets in Bb (Tpt in Bb 1-2), Trombones (Tbn 1-2), Baritone Trombone (B. Tbn), and Tubas (Tba 1-2).
The strings play a steady, rhythmic accompaniment in the first 15 measures. In the second system, they play a more active role, with dynamic markings like f and p.

Percussion Section:
Timpani (Timp.), Snare Drum (Sn. Dr.), Tom-Toms (T. Dr. (H) / T. Dr. (L)), and Anvil (Anv.).
The percussion provides a strong rhythmic foundation, with the snare drum and tom-toms playing a consistent pattern.

Other Instruments:
Harp (Hp), Violins (Vln I, Vln II), Viola (Via), Violoncello (Vc.), and Double Bass (D. B.).
The harp plays a delicate, arpeggiated accompaniment. The strings play a rhythmic pattern, with dynamic markings like f and p.

Tempo and Dynamics:
The tempo is marked as $\text{♩} = 90$. The score includes various dynamic markings such as ff, f, p, and pp, indicating a range of volume levels.
