Gabriel Jackson

Ruined Land
for tenor and piano

RUINED LAND was commissioned by Hansell Stevenson Solicitors with additional funds provided by the Britten-Pears Foundation and the Norfolk Association for the Advancement of Music, and was first performed by Mark Wilde and Edward Bhesania at St. Peter and St. Paul's Church, Salle, on June 11th 1994

Duration: 9 minutes

Where the land rises and dips, a country to itself;
Where nature holds its breath or gently dances;
Where flowers grow, disturbed by rain alone;
Where creatures play on empty pathways;
Where life performs mysteries unobserved;
Where wings beat and batter the swaying elm tops;
Where branches give and kick beneath invisible leaping;
Where deer start into the thickness of leaves;
Where acorns drop, like heavier things, to the floor;
Where lagoons sullenly lap.

Where you were.
Where you walked on paths of dried, pestled softness;
Where we lay in clearings until weakened by the heat, Or polished smooth trunks with our swinging legs;
Where we whispered, or listened to the forest tillness.
Where light, grey and white, lingers beyona the complex geometry of birch limbs;
Where fallen mists bisect the skyward fingaring;
Where there is no shelter from the wind
But the last copper leaf clings to its stem tip.
Where I am.
Where humming lines outsing the fomest's breathing,
Where listless water erupts in tolic froth,
Where the stink and throb of highways reach,
Where poisons seep through the garth, gust on the air.
This place is wasted like our Iove.
Richard George Elliott

Ruined Land

Text: Richard George Elliott
Music: Gabriel Jackson

$4$

$101 \quad$ Urgent $q=84$

232 q $=72$ Frozen

